

From FX to High-Yield Bonds: Global Electronic Trading Update

July 27, 2018

Executive Summary:

Q3 2018

Electronic trading is growing marketwide, although top-line growth in the past two years has slowed from revolutionary to evolutionary. The most electronic markets, FX and index CDS, are likely near their e-trading limits on the surface. In the coming years, however, they will see more innovation, as liquidity venues and market participants improve upon existing processes.

Methodology:

Throughout 2017, Greenwich Associates conducted interviews with nearly 8,000 institutional investors around the world, active in fixed income, foreign exchange or equities. Study participants were asked about their usage of electronic trading channels.

This Document does not constitute nor form part of an offer or invitation to subscribe for, underwrite or purchase securities in any company. Nor should this Document, or any part of it, form the basis to be relied upon in any way in connection with any contract relating to any securities. The Document is not an investment analysis or research and is not subject to regulatory or legal obligations on the production of, or content of, investment analysis or research.

The data contained in the Document is based upon a particular bank's scope, which reflects a bank's data submission, business structure, and sales revenue Reporting methodology. As a result, any data contained in the Document may not be directly comparable to data presented to another bank. For franchise benchmarking, Crisil Coalition Greenwich has implemented equal ranking logic on aggregate results i.e., when sales revenues are within 5% of at least one competitor ahead, a tie is shown and designated by = (where actual ranks are shown). Entity level data has no equal ranking logic implemented and therefore, on occasion, the differences between rank bands can be very close mathematically.

The data in this Document may reflect the views reported to Crisil Coalition Greenwich by the research participants. Interviewees may be asked about their use of and demand for financial products and services and about investment practices in relevant financial markets. Crisil Coalition Greenwich compiles the data received, conducts statistical analysis and reviews for presentation purposes to produce the final results.
