

Top Dealers Continue to Dominate Swaps Business

Systemic risk has been reduced, but so has competition

January 31, 2019

Executive Summary:

We have examined in previous years a variety of structural issues in the swaps market that discourage new entrants from stepping into the fray. The capital intensity of the business is the primary one, but details being debated this year as swaps trading rules are in flux—such as post-trade name give-up, the ability to trade via "any means of interstate commerce" and moving toward a market where RFQ to 1 is explicitly permitted—are worthy of deeper examination.

Methodology:

In the first half of 2018, Greenwich Associates conducted interviews with 85 interest-rate derivatives investors in the United States as part of its annual North American Fixed-Income Investors Study.

The data contained in the Document is based upon a particular bank's scope, which reflects a bank's data submission, business structure, and sales revenue Reporting methodology. As a result, any data contained in the Document may not be directly comparable to data presented to another bank. For franchise benchmarking, Crisil Coalition Greenwich has implemented equal ranking logic on aggregate results i.e., when sales revenues are within 5% of at least one competitor ahead, a tie is shown and designated by = (where actual ranks are shown). Entity level data has no equal ranking logic implemented and therefore, on occasion, the differences between rank bands can be very close mathematically.

The data in this Document may reflect the views reported to Crisil Coalition Greenwich by the research participants. Interviewees may be asked about their use of and demand for financial products and services and about investment practices in relevant financial markets. Crisil Coalition Greenwich compiles the data received, conducts statistical analysis and reviews for presentation purposes to produce the final results.
