

U.S. Equity Electronic Trading: A Look Back at 2019 and Into 2020

July 21, 2020

Executive Summary:

Remember back in 2019 when equity trading was characterized by low volatility and static volumes? When the VIX hovered around 15 and rarely spiked above 20? How times have changed.

The relatively calm waters in 2019 still revealed interesting undercurrents.

Whether we are looking at the seemingly slow and steady increase of trading reported to the TRF, the unexpected increase of importance of low-touch service, the high satisfaction with dark pools, or the exceptional NPS for conditional orders, there were plenty of currents just out of sight.

Methodology:

Between July and September 2019, Greenwich Associates interviewed 51 U.S.-based buy-side equity traders regarding their electronic trading preferences.

The data contained in the Document is based upon a particular bank's scope, which reflects a bank's data submission, business structure, and sales revenue Reporting methodology. As a result, any data contained in the Document may not be directly comparable to data presented to another bank. For franchise benchmarking, Crisil Coalition Greenwich has implemented equal ranking logic on aggregate results i.e., when sales revenues are within 5% of at least one competitor ahead, a tie is shown and designated by = (where actual ranks are shown). Entity level data has no equal ranking logic implemented and therefore, on occasion, the differences between rank bands can be very close mathematically.

The data in this Document may reflect the views reported to Crisil Coalition Greenwich by the research participants. Interviewees may be asked about their use of and demand for financial products and services and about investment practices in relevant financial markets. Crisil Coalition Greenwich compiles the data received, conducts statistical analysis and reviews for presentation purposes to produce the final results.
