

Why the Buy Side Chooses their FX Dealers and Trading Venues

November 19, 2024

Executive Summary:

The goal of any buy-side trader is to achieve best execution. For FX traders, transaction cost analysis (TCA) and other similar tools are making it easier to measure not only the buy-side trader's progress on the mission to achieve best ex, but how well each dealer counterparty performs. Thus, the already hyper-competitive FX dealer market is becoming more competitive than ever. So, as the focus on execution quality increases, it is important to understand how, where and with whom the buy side trades—and, of course, why.

Methodology:

Coalition Greenwich conducted interviews with 342 buy-side FX traders globally, between Q2 and Q4 2023 to discover their views about key issues in the market, including what might cause them to reduce their trade flow to a dealer and their opinions on multidealer platforms. The answers were then categorized to highlight patterns in the buy side's view of their relationships with their dealers. In addition, Coalition Greenwich interviewed 87 FX traders across North America, Europe and MENA in Q2 2024 to ascertain their views on evolving use of execution venues.

Our suite of analytics and insights encompass all key performance metrics and drivers: market share, revenue performance, client relationship share and quality, operational excellence, return on equity, behavioral drivers, and industry evolution.

The data contained in the Document is based upon a particular bank's scope, which reflects a bank's data submission, business structure, and sales revenue Reporting methodology. As a result, any data contained in the Document may not be directly comparable to data presented to another bank. For franchise benchmarking, Crisil Coalition Greenwich has implemented equal ranking logic on aggregate results i.e., when sales revenues are within 5% of at least one competitor ahead, a tie is shown and designated by = (where actual ranks are shown). Entity level data has no equal ranking logic implemented and therefore, on occasion, the differences between rank bands can be very close mathematically.

The data in this Document may reflect the views reported to Crisil Coalition Greenwich by the research participants. Interviewees may be asked about their use of and demand for financial products and services and about investment practices in relevant financial markets. Crisil Coalition Greenwich compiles the data received, conducts statistical analysis and reviews for presentation purposes to produce the final results.
