

Blurred Lines: Sales Traders Drift Toward Execution Consultancy

September 22, 2015

Executive Summary:

For institutional traders, the original “set and forget” approach to e-trading has been supplanted by a purposeful, spasmodic style where orders are released for a few minutes and then cancelled when they appear to be impactful.

As a result, block and algorithmic trading are no longer separate endeavors.

The growth and adaptation of low-touch trading has strongly influenced the roles and capabilities of institutions and their brokerage counterparts.

Sales traders who embrace this change and acclimate themselves to the value of execution consultancy are likely to take the pole position.

Methodology:

Greenwich Associates conducted in-person and telephone interviews regarding U.S. equity investing with 243 U.S. equity portfolio managers and 321 U.S. equity traders between November 2014 and February 2015. Respondents answered a series of qualitative and quantitative questions about the brokers they use and their businesses in the U.S. cash equity space.

The data reported in this document reflect solely the views reported to Greenwich Associates by the research participants. Interviewees may be asked about their use of and demand for financial products and services and about investment practices in relevant financial markets. Greenwich Associates compiles the data received, conducts statistical analysis and reviews for presentation purposes in order to produce the final results. Unless otherwise indicated, any opinions or market observations made are strictly our own.

As a result, any data contained in the Document may not be directly comparable to data presented to another bank. For franchise benchmarking, Crisil Coalition Greenwich has implemented equal ranking logic on aggregate results i.e., when sales revenues are within 5% of at least one competitor ahead, a tie is shown and designated by = (where actual ranks are shown). Entity level data has no equal ranking logic implemented and therefore, on occasion, the differences between rank bands can be very close mathematically.
