

Digital Capabilities Rapidly Emerging As A Key Driver of Commercial Bank Selection

December 22, 2017

Greenwich Associates latest research shows the majority of wholesale executives indicated that a bank's digital capabilities are critical in determining how they select a provider.

As the marketplace evolves and service perceptions are more closely tied to technology, those that are positioned to innovate and invest will benefit. However, an increasingly competitive and capable set of third-party providers are also making solutions viable for banks without sufficient scale or internal development expertise.

DIGITAL CAPABILITIES AS A DRIVER IN BANK SELECTION

Source 2017: Greenwich Market Pulse v68 (November 2017)

A majority of companies credit digital channels with making it easier to do business with their bank, and approximately one-third of small businesses and one-half of mid-sized companies would even be open to a self-service banking model that carried lower fees.

This reality presents an interesting opportunity for banks today to drive efficiency and focus banker resources on business development activities.

Market leaders will be recognized as part of the Greenwich Associates expanded digital banking awards to be announced in the first quarter of 2018.

The data contained in the Document is based upon a particular bank's scope, which reflects a bank's data submission, business structure, and sales revenue Reporting methodology. As a result, any data contained in the Document may not be directly comparable to data presented to another bank. For franchise benchmarking, Crisil Coalition Greenwich has implemented equal ranking logic on aggregate results i.e., when sales revenues are within 5% of at least one competitor ahead, a tie is shown and designated by = (where actual ranks are shown). Entity level data has no equal ranking logic implemented and therefore, on occasion, the differences between rank bands can be very close mathematically.

The data in this Document may reflect the views reported to Crisil Coalition Greenwich by the research participants. Interviewees may be asked about their use of and demand for financial products and services and about investment practices in relevant financial markets. Crisil Coalition Greenwich compiles the data received, conducts statistical analysis and reviews for presentation purposes to produce the final results.
