

SEF Rule Changes to Accelerate Innovation in Swaps Trading

June 7, 2018

Executive Summary:

Each year experts from Greenwich Associates evaluate bank digital platforms extensively and ask management detailed questions about their systems. Bank participants in the program are able to anonymously and objectively rate the specific features and functions that are currently available to corporate/commercial banking clients through Internet-based, mobile and other electronic channels, such as SWIFT and host-to-host connectivity, relative to other leading banks and non-bank providers.

While the rule changes have yet to be proposed formally, the Chairman and Chief Economist at the CFTC recently released a white paper outlining their thoughts about and plans for the swaps market going forward. All the major elements of the post-credit-crisis swaps market are examined—trading, clearing, reporting, and participant registration. But the proposed SEF changes are likely to be particularly impactful, especially given the major innovations in electronic trading since the rules were written back in 2011. SEFs are set to both gain some flexibility and lose some control.

Methodology:

Based on conversations with regulators and market participants in the second quarter of 2018 and interviews with 90 interest-rate derivatives investors in the United States in 2017.

The data contained in the Document is based upon a particular bank's scope, which reflects a bank's data submission, business structure, and sales revenue Reporting methodology. As a result, any data contained in the Document may not be directly comparable to data presented to another bank. For franchise benchmarking, Crisil Coalition Greenwich has implemented equal ranking logic on aggregate results i.e., when sales revenues are within 5% of at least one competitor ahead, a tie is shown and designated by = (where actual ranks are shown). Entity level data has no equal ranking logic implemented and therefore, on occasion, the differences between rank bands can be very close mathematically.

The data in this Document may reflect the views reported to Crisil Coalition Greenwich by the research participants. Interviewees may be asked about their use of and demand for financial products and services and about investment practices in relevant financial markets. Crisil Coalition Greenwich compiles the data received, conducts statistical analysis and reviews for presentation purposes to produce the final results.
